

LONDON

LONDON SOARING BIRDS

London's parks are famously and elegantly woven into the city's fabric: centuries-old trees offer refuge to birds that never leave the city. It was that image of the birds, always ready to soar into the sky, that found its way into Anna Agapova's drawings. These were created in the style of Jackson Pollock, the master of abstract expressionism. This pattern is a graphic expression of the ornamental lines representing the firmness and the movement of the branches and, of course, the birds taking flight. The harmony of form and light is embodied in the design, defining the essence of beauty.

MATERIALS:

Background: Wool & botanic silk

Pattern: Botanic silk and linen

Available in polyamide fibre*.

- * Polyamide is a synthetic fibre with excellent performance characteristics; polyamide fibre has a luxurious look and soft feel. Lowest price. Request additionally.

SIZES

Available in custom colours & sizes

LEAD TIME

16 weeks